For the second time IUVSTA calls for applications for the IUVSTA EBARA Award.

The IUVSTA EBARA Award recognizes an excellent young researcher or engineer to support innovation in environmentally friendly solutions in the area of vacuum-related science and technologies.

Our societies are challenged to reduce energy consumption in general and greenhouse gases in particular, to solve environmental problems associated with our urbanization such as reducing waste and intelligent use of new information technologies and communication means. Vacuum-related science and technologies can contribute to those societal grand challenges and sustainable development, as almost all high-tech products have encountered a vacuum assisted process.

This application form and all supporting documents shall be filled online by April 30, 2022.
